

Mr. John Steventon

John Steventon is an Aviation Safety Inspector currently working for Flight standards, Flight Technologies and Procedures Branch, Flight Operations Group (AFS-410E) supporting Aviation Weather policy and procedures. He works across several lines-of-business with Air Traffic, NOAA, NWS, AWC, NTSB and industry on weather related issues. He's a member of the FAA's Weather Community of Interest (Wx COI) and a Co-lead for one of the Wx COI's Special Weather Action Teams (SWATs) UAS SWAT. Mr. Steventon started with the FAA in 2010 in the FAA's Unmanned Aircraft Integration Office working UAS Public Aircraft Operations for public safety organizations across the country before moving to AFS-410E to work Aviation Weather. Mr. Steventon holds a commercial pilot rating, rotorcraft helicopter, instrument helicopter. Mr. Steventon is a retired military aviator (1987-2010) with flight and operational experiences in both manned and unmanned aircraft operations.